African university in the QS World University Rankings, and the Academic Ra within the World Economic Forum, which is formed by 26 of the best universities in the world [7]. Five former students, officials and researchers with qualification A (which constitute 30 % of the national total) [8] and 88 staff members are members of the Academy of Sciences of Suda Frica [9]. Early history History The University of Cape Cape was founded in a meeting at the Groote Kerk in 1829 such as the South African school, a high school for young men. The school had a small tertiary education center, introduced in 1874 [10] that grew substantially after 1880, when the discovery of gold and diamonds in the north - and the consequent demand for mining skills in mining - gave him the Financial impulse I needed to grow. The College became a full-fledged university during these years, the University built its first dedicated scientific laboratories, and initiated the departments of Mineralogãa and Geology to satisfy the need for qualified personnel in the emerging extraction industries of diamonds and gold of the PAÍ. The UCT crest was designed in 1859 by Charles Davidson Bell, general surveyor of the Cape neighborhood at that time. Bell was an consummated artist who also designed medals and the Triangular Seal of the Cape. Another fundamental novelty in this permit was admission of women. In 1886 the chemistry teacher, Paul Daniel Hahn, persuaded the council to admit four women to his experimental chemistry teacher, Paul Daniel Hahn, persuaded the council to admit four women to his experimental chemistry teacher, Paul Daniel Hahn, persuaded the council to admit four women. students, the College decided to admit the students permanently in honor of the Diamond Jubilee of Queen Victoria in 1887. In the 1902 to 1918 the Faculty of Medicine was created, the engineering courses were introduced and He created an education department. The UCT was formally established as a university in 1918, [10] on the basis of Alfred Beit's legacy and other important gifts from the mining magnates Julius Wernher and Otto Beit. The new university also received a substantial support of supporters from the east of the upper campus in Groote Schuur on the slopes of the Diablo peak; The University moved here in 1928. In 1928, the University was able to move most of its facilities to Groote Schuur, on the slopes of the Diablo peak, in a legacy to the birth by Cecil John Rhodes as the headquarters of a national university in research and teaching in the following days, the UCT was gained by the nickname of "mosc㺠in the hill" during the 1960-1990 permit for its sustained opposition to apartheid, particularly in higher education [11]. The University admitted to its first small group of black students in the day of 1920. The number of black students remained relatively low to the eighties and ninety -nine, when the institution, reading and welcoming with satisfaction the signs of change in the country, it committed to a deliberate and planned process of internal transformation. From the eighties to the early nineties, the number of black students admitted at the university increased by 35 percent. In 2004, almost half of the 20,000 UC students were black and just under half of the students were women. Today in DÉA, the University counts one of the most diverse campuses in South Africa[12]. It was post-apartheid Rhodes Must Fall (stylized as #RhodesMustFall) was a protest movement that started 9 March 2015, originally directed against a statue at the University of Cape Town (UCT) that commemorates Cecil Rhodes. The campaign for the statue's removal received global attention[13][14] and led to a wider movement to "decolonise" education across South Africa.[14][15] On 9 April 2015, following a UCT Council vote the previous night, the statue was removed. #FeesMustFall was a student protest movement[16] which was arguably indirectly inspired by the Rhodes University and then the rest of the South African universities. It called for the abolition fee increases for the 2016 academic year. Diverse demands arose such as the abolition of fees and decolonisation of higher education which led to substantial changes at South African public university began the process of the renaming of buildings on campus (the most notable example was when Jameson Hall was renamed to Sarah Baartman Hall in 2019). In September 2019, Film and Media studies student Uyinene Mrwetyana went missing. After the community and police began searching, her body was discovered in the Cape Flats area of Cape Town and Luyanda Botha was arrested and convicted for her rape and murder.[18] Her death and the rape and death of other women precipitated widespread public outcry that led to a campus shutdown[19] and protests on campus, at the Parliament precinct in Cape Town CBD and at campuses around South Africa. Subsequently, President Ramaphosa announced[20] reforms such as harsher punishments for sex offenders and the public disclosure of the National Register for Sex Offenders to stem sexual and physical violence against women and children.[21] Moreover, the Uyinene Mrwetyana Foundation was established and a special fund in her name was created to provide scholarships to female students in the Humanities ehT .yrotavresbO ni latipsoH ruuhcS etoorG eht ot txen supmac loohcS lacideM eht no detacol si

Students living in the residence are placed at a level according to the time permit that have been in the residence study at university and service or part-time employment in a nursing home. The University of Cape Town was originally incorporated as a public university by a private law of Parliament in 1918. It is now incorporated and structured by an institutional statute promulgated under the provisions of the Higher Education Act 3 1997. The incumbent rector of the university is the rector; this is a ceremonial post with no executive power.
The principal role of the rector is to confer degrees on behalf of the university, and to represent the university to the rest of the world. [29] The current Chancellor is the fashion entrepreneur and philanthropist Dr. Precious Moloi-Motsepe, who was elected in November 2019 and assumed office on January 1, 2020[30] after the expiration of the second consecutive 10-year term of office<sup>3</sup> Graãfâ§a Machel. The University Council is the structure of decisión and appointment of greater rank range the university, it is directly accountable to the Government of the Republic through the Minister of Higher Education, currently Dr Blade Nzimande for matters relating to the university.[31] It is composed of 30 broad stakeholder representatives such as students, academics, staff and appointees of the Western Cape and the Minister of Higher Education among others, and the presiding officer of the council, the chair, is currently Sipho Pityana.[31] The Registrar, who acts as the secretary of the Convocation, is currently Royston Pillay.[32] The Convocation, composed of alumni, the Vice Chancellors, academic registration and legal matters, and administers the Convocation, is currently Royston Pillay.[32] The Registrar, who acts as the secretary of the Convocation, is currently Royston Pillay.[32] The Convocation, composed of alumni, the Vice Chancellors, academic registration and legal matters, and administers the Convocation, is currently Royston Pillay.[32] The Royston Pillay.

 protests. Destruction and censorship of art from the withdrawal of the statue of Rhodes, another art has been eliminated or destroyed. Feesmustfall students burned 23 of the historical paintings of the University in February 2016. [98] According to Groundup, art experts related to the university are concerned about intolerance towards art in the institution, since the UCT has eliminated and censored 75 "vulnerable" works of art that, as they affirm, are offensive to students.
